

Colorado Springs, Colorado

The Switchbacks are the most noted stretch upon the Pike's Peak Auto Highway which ascends Historic Pike's Peak. It is a succession of zig zags rising over a thousand feet and is typical of remarkable road building achievements necessitated in reaching the top of the Peak 14,109 feet high.

Summit House of Cog Road at Altitude of 14,109 Feet, Colorado Springs, Colorado

The picturesque Old Summit House at tip top of Pikes Peak, has withstood the fierce storms of the upper regions for nearly forty years. It has been the Mecca for the tens of thousands who have visited the summit during all these years and furnished comfort and protection for them within its massive stone walls from the gales and cold and storms.

Seven Falls is one of the most perfect spectacles in Colorado. From Stratton Park a short but delightful journey through the deep granite gorge of South Cheyenne Cañon leads to the "Blind End" of the cañon where the Seven Falls plunge down three hundred feet of sheer cliffs in a series of falls. The falls and the cañon both combine in an effect of beauty and massiveness too complete for words.
