SOUTH BEND—Orders have been received by the Banner Gas Range works of South Bend, to manufacture several hundred gas ranges for use in the aviation cantonment of the United States army at Lina Vista, Cal. The range is a special type, designed by John C. Van Riper, Jr., general manager of the Banner works.

MILTON—Theodore Crist, a retired farmer of this place, has sold his farm of seventy acres to William Heitzel, of Collinsville, O., for $10,070.

WINCHESTER—The Woodbury Glass Company is rebuilding its plant, and Manager Clark announces that it will be ready to begin making bottles by November 1. The capacity is being increased 50 per cent.

ALEXANDRIA—Officials of the Lippincott Glass Company announced Friday that the factory was ready for operations, but that the men were waiting on a referendum vote in regard to the wage scale. At a meeting held in Atlantic City, N. J., no agreement was reached in regard to wages. The men say the factory can operate under the agreement of last year until the wage question is settled.

EVANSVILLE—The W. H. Dyer Packing Company, which recently started operations here, has been notified that the federal government will take about 15 per cent. of the company's tomato pack. The government also will take a part of the company's corn and string bean pack. The contract for the building of the Law avenue sewer here has been awarded to J. L. Newman & Co. Work is to be started within thirty days and the sewer is to be completed by January 1. Milk distributers have agreed to pay local dairymen 65 cents a gallon instead of 55 for butter fat. The increase of nearly 20 per cent. is demanded by the dairymen because of mounting prices for milch cows, according to an official of the Southern Indiana Dairymen's Association. Many dairymen are selling their highly bred cattle to the slaughter houses because no one else can afford to buy them for dairy purposes. J. F. Schafer, a dairyman, recently sold thirty head of fine Holsteins for beef because of the high prices of feed. The herd of Henry Barnett, another dairyman, also was sold for beef.

JEFFERSONVILLE—Preparations are being made to put in from seventy-five to 100 sewing machines at the quartermaster's depot here for a new clothing manufacturing branch. Soldiers' clothes will be made on a large scale. Congress, some time ago, appropriated about $40,000 for this department, which will employ from 150 to 200 persons, principally women. The plans of Colonel W. S. Wood, depot quartermaster, call for an output of about 500 woolen garments a day, or twice that number of cotton garments.

SHELBYVILLE—The county commissioners, on Thursday, awarded the contract for a steam heating plant for the courthouse and jail to the Hoosier Plumbing Company, of this city. The bid was $3,000.

SCORES PROFITEERING WHILE WAR IS RAGING

GOV. LOWDEN SAYS COUNTRY MUST BE PUT FIRST.

SPEAKS AT JACKSONVILLE

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., August 17.—Declaring that the "supreme test" for America had come, Governor Lowden, in an address here this afternoon, deplored war profiteering by those who are "growing drunk on profits" and said the country must be put first or the nation would fail in the present struggle.

The Governor made no reference to the coal situation in Illinois, although his remarks were believed to have been prompted by the failure of the operators to co-operate with Chief Justice Carter, state coal director, in fixing prices on coal. Prices have been branded by the state council of defense as "indefensible".

"The time has come," the Governor said, "when American business men must decide whether they will put their country or their fortunes first. No man is a patriot who would not give all he has if he could tomorrow, with honor, end the war. What then shall be said of the men who openly avow that they not only want large profits for the present but want to recoup their losses of the past and provide insurance against possible future losses?

Means Blood Money.

"It is essential to the successful prosecution of this war that business should proceed along normal lines with a fair profit. To attempt to extort, however, unnatural profits at such a time is to seek blood money.

"The German empire has sneeringly referred to us as a nation that cares for naught but wealth. Its rulers for this very reason have minimized the danger to them if we were to enter the war. Does it not look at times as though they were half right?

"The supreme test has come. We shall either put our country before all else; we will wait until the dawning of peace before we even consider our personal fortunes or we shall fail.

Grow Drunk on Profits.

"To preserve peace and quiet at home is as difficult a problem as to win battles upon the battlefield. How are we to achieve this if the people who are giving their sons, their all to their country are to be exploited at home by those who are growing drunk upon profits which this war has brought to them?"

The governor then referred to a visit to Ft. Sheridan, where 5,000 young men, "the flower of the manhood of three states" were in training.

"In this supreme test which has come to America shall the spirit of greed prevail, or shall the spirit which lit the faces of those young men at Ft. Sheridan become the dominating spirit of the republic?" said the Governor in conclusion.

IRVINGTON MAN DRIVES TRUCK CLOSE BEHIND ALLIED TRENCHES

John Kautz Has Been Under Fire, But Finds the Experience Less Terrifying Than He Had Anticipated—Has Nicks in His Steel Helmet, Made by Bullets.

A letter has been received in this city from John Kautz, of Irvington, who went to France as the driver of the Phi Delta Theta ambulance. As the ambulance was delayed in delivery after he arrived on the ground, he went into the trucking branch of the service. He gives a chapter of his experience in that line close behind the trenches. Kautz was a student, and he is a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Kautz. In his letter he says:

"As I write I am sitting on a shock of wheat thrown down from a harvest pile in a hilltop field. It is rather a rendezvous of mine, for the hill is high and one can see for many miles—to the north and east the smoke of battle, to the south and west such fertile valleys as remind me of the hilly south of our own state. The hour is early, for at 3 this morning I awoke from my first full night's sleep in many a day, and breakfasted and sent away some cars. They are keeping us pretty busy now. There has been much fighting hereabouts, of which you will have read and no doubt will forget before this reaches you. There is Craonne, between the Chemin des Dames and the twin plateaus of Chartinbrise and Californie, where the French have withstood such tremendous onslaughts in the last two weeks—and all of it we have served a little with our trucks.

Ambulances Were Delayed.

"Our ambulances were delayed, so I joined 150 fellows who were going up to drive the big army trucks. There are 500 of us now from Yale, Cornell, Dartmouth, Chicago, California and a dozen other universities, and though we were a bit disappointed in the change at first, we feel now that we are helping France the most by doing so.

"I suppose that we never can make the name that the ambulance corps did for itself. There is none of the romance or glory, no chance of gaining the distinction that the men who came before us honorably did with their little ambulances. Mostly it is just hard plugging, jarring, straining labor with the five-ton loads, which may be anything from logs to shells and nitroglycerin.

"It rains too much, and even the excellent roads here can not stand the traffic. Sometimes for a week at a time the game is mostly sliding sideways down the hills, with your eyes shut and praying that the other fellow keeps his distance. When we go up close it is always at night, and there are no lights—even cigarettes—allowed, so we stand a pretty good chance of sliding into the man ahead, although the night work is getting to be more or less instinctive now.

Nicks in Steel Helmets.

"I no longer drive very much, as I am a brigadier of the company, and am kept jumping on and off the trucks a good deal, but often on the way home, when we have been going pretty hard for a bit and I have not slept, I wake from a doze at a slackening of the speed and make a frantic grab for the brake lever which is not there, from the habit of running in the dark.

"You will want to know if we have been under fire, I suppose, and what it felt like. The answer is 'yes,' but the experience was much less terrifying, even on the first occurrence, than I had anticipated. Several of us (I for one) have nicks in our steel helmets which we hope some day to display. But, of course, those pieces were pretty well spent before they came, or I would not be writing this letter.

"One man in another company is reported to have complained to his lieutenant that some one from our company had thrown rocks at him the other day. Investigation showed the top of his car well shredded and eleven pieces of shell in the bottom of the car.

Are Becoming Fatalists.

"But somehow they do not seem to get us. The men take unholy chances sometimes, for the sake of seeing all there is to see, but a fool's providence takes care of those who do such things, and no one has been hurt so far.

"Tell the anxious ones at home who think this work more perilous than the ambulance that it is not so. We go the same places they do every day and one has only to see a big shell burst to know that if we are to meet one it does not matter what our load is.

"I suppose we are all to become fatalists by now with regard to life and death. It is well, for that philosophy will let us live each day with all the fervor in us, and it leaves no place for cowardice. There are loved ones at home whose memory will not let us want to die, but if it comes we can count our lives well spent, at least. Sometimes it galls a bit to know that we are almost outsiders in the war, that though we carry guns and drill and stand our turn at guard, are in the vast army of France, we are not really of it. To see the things the war has done to France; to drop down into some back trench and talk to men who have been where hell was popping hour by hour; to pass the miles of roadside unnamed graves, each in part responsible for the black that veils the womanhood of France; to see a little town that once housed happy families made into dust before your eyes, or view the pitiable human dust of wounded, worn-out men that straggle ever back to rest while others take their places—it makes you want to fight and question why you have a right to stay unscathed.

America Must Sacrifice Much.

"The war as we can see it here is far from being fought all out. America will have to give at least a part as much as France, and recollect that it is to suffer and do without and die and sorrow as the present generation never has. Many of us who are the young men of the day will have to give the best we have to pay. There is no more glamour about it all any more, no glory. The things I have seen, in days to come will make me shudder when I have time to think. But I guess I am willing enough to 'carry on,' at that. The best of it out here is that we do not have time to think, but feel somehow a sense of duty that sends us along well enough content, and we live more or less on the day to day excitement. Besides, you are not to think we live in calm enough to permit of such speculation as I have indulged in this early hour today. Mostly it is laughter and joke about the things that happen, no matter how serious they may be, and sing a bit at night.

Catch Pair of Spent Balls.

"Sometimes when someone is laid up for a day or so, he breaks out with a poem or a song or adds some new choice bit to our atrocious slang. Altogether, perhaps the fun is a bit unreally born of the reactions from the cessation of the crash and rush of wind and shock of the big guns up front. But we are all right, and for the time, at least, we would not change places with our own army, for we are having lots of action. Later, perhaps, we can join them when they are doing things. I hope so.

"Since writing the foregoing two men have come in rather badly dazed from catching a pair of spent balls in the side of the head. I have given them first aid and shipped them off to the hospital—it is nothing much, but it spoils our record. Except for three broken arms there had been no other injuries so far."

Rabbi Schorr Is Dead.

FT. WAYNE, Ind., August 17.—Rabbi Saul Schorr, age sixty, minister of B'nai Jacob congregation in this city, died today. He had been in charge of congregations in San Francisco and Winnipeg, Manitoba, before coming to Ft. Wayne two years ago.

Not Much Needed.

[Kansas City Journal]

"Should the movies talk?"

"I dunno. Seems to me the pictures prove how little talk we really need in a play."

SHELBY COUNTY.

[Special to The Indianapolis News]

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., August 17.—Twenty-five young men of the county, who were examined here last week to determine their fitness for military service and rejected because of weight and teeth were re-examined today by the local examining board. Several of the men expected to be passed under the new regulations for admittance into the service as laid down by the war department.

Thirty-three more men have been ordered to report for examination next Wednesday. Thirty will appear Saturday; sixty-four Monday; and thirty-three on Tuesday. It is believed that a total of 700 men will be called before the quota for the county is obtained.
