

Will Make Butter on a Large Scale.

George Foulke, a prosperous farmer of Jackson township, has concluded that there is money in what some people on farms consider insignificant things and is arranging to engage in the butter business on a large scale. He is milking nine cows now and expects to add to this number in the near future. He is already shipping from 50 to 60 pounds of butter every week and he hopes to increase the output to 100 pounds weekly. He has just completed a 60 ton silo and is remodeling his barn. He is a natural mechanic and has the reputation of being the most up-to-date farmer in his neighborhood.
